The happiest and truest characterization of Moore's genius that we have ever seen, comes unconsciously from himself — The following lines from "Lilla Rookh" are exquisitely descriptive of the poet's own power:

A Happy Riddance!

We congratulate the people of the Commonwealth upon having got rid at last of that moral pest, the Board of Canal Commissioners. On the substance of the people, these controlling demagogues have marshalled their hosts of mercenaries for year to year, and marched them to polls to out vote the real public sentiment of the State. They, and their appointees have speculated and plundered the people of the Commonwealth to an incredible extent and many of them are rioting, dressed "purple and fine linen," "o' day, on their gotten gains. The Board and those around them were a moral leprosy—a foul fung upon the body politic, and the low mercenary abjectness into which they, for their example, have sunk the party in the State, show full well that their influence was fast corrupting those who act with them, and rendering the whole body politic rotten to the core. Thank Heaven, however, the mortal pestilence has been stayed—the root of the evil been eradicated from the soil. The passage by the Legislature of the Sunbury and Erie Railroad Bill, which the State has forever separated itself from all control of the Public Works, has effected this wholesome reform, rendering the further services of the Canal Board totally unnecessary. A bill has been, also, passed abolishing the Board, which was to go into effect on the first of July, but we see by a Harrisburg paper that the Board, out of excessive chagrin, perhaps, have resolved to go out of office at once. The meeting cause to this is that there has been no appropriation made for their pay up to that time, showing evidently that their ruling passion is strong.

death," and when there is no further chance to finger the State funds, they are "Let them go—and thanks for doing it." That leak is stopped forever — York Record.

Hard Times in the West

There is little encouragement for emigration in the following extract, which is taken from a letter written in Warren, Lincoln county, Ill.

"Here in the North West, so far as I am acquainted, the farmers have generally paid a large portion of their debts to the merchants, and those that have held on to the grain will not have much surplus cash after paying their debts, even if there should come some rise above the present prices, there seems to be a general desire to 'square off' and be out of debt, so that when all the product is marketed, it will have no more value in the hands of the producers. Merchants, too, generally decline credits, and farmers are averse to running up store bills again, so that the only resource is to save what they have. Thus they do by wearing patched clothes, and doing without a equal necessities as tea, coffee, sugar and spices. Farmers whose farms are worth from $2,000 to $5,000, and whose cash last year were large, have not been able to buy their wives' sauitling calico dresses for themselves more than a pair of denims overalls to cover up their rags and their children. These were men who used to run up store bills from $100 to $600 a month. This is not exaggerated, but a fair statement of affairs in general here. Then, again, farmers have poorer fences, and hired much less help, so they cannot make their crops pay for the help at anything near the present figures for grain. The whole class of mechanics and laborers are in the same fix. They cannot buy of the mercantile if they want, and can really work not if they could find a job. Let our Government establish a Protective Tariff, and India, as well as the poor people of England, will become free from oppression.

An Early Harvest—The Chicago Press of the 16th says:

'We find by consulting our files that the 27th day of June 1857, fifty bushels of new barley from Southern Illinois was sold in the Cincinnati market, and was further, that by the 4th of July the wheat harvest had fairly commenced in Ohio and other adjoining counties. That early, but judging from present indications the harvest in that section of our State will commence at least a week or two earlier than the present season. Winter wheat has already attained a very strong growth, and we should not be surprised if the first crops of Egypt should be made by the first of June.'

DEFERRED ARTICLES.

A Monstrous Case.

The Philadelphia Evening Bulletin gives the following revolting details:

"On Sunday evening, a woman named Zell, who lived in a court, running out of Poplar street near Third, gave birth to twin children, which were connected together at the trunk, somewhat after the manner of the Siamese twins. The child or children died soon after its or their birth, and the mother having intimated that the remains were in the market for a purchaser, the attending physician offered $85 for them. He was overbid, however, by a German woman, named Wilhelmina Apple, who purchased the curiosity for the sum of $50, on account of which she paid $25, and took charge of the remains, which were carried to a larger beer-salon in the vicinity of Germantown Road, where it was placed in a bottle of water, for public exhibition. The father of the wonderful freak of nature, was not satisfied with this disposition of the body. He thought it was worth more money, alleging it would bring $500. He, therefore, watched an early opportunity, and stole the prize away from the larger beer-salon. This created quite an excitement among the patrons of that establishment—Wilhelmina, having no disposition to be thus deprived of her lawful property, procured a warrant from Alderman Clark, and placed it in the hands of Constable Dims, who arrested Zell, whom Alderman Clark ordered to find bail to answer at Court—Zell alleged that he only wanted to have the body decently interred, but the story goes that the remains having been put in water instead of spirits, were not in a suitable condition, when the husband finally got possession of them, and was unwillingly compelled to put them under ground. The affair from beginning to end is monstrous."

Barbarous Superstition.

A Dead Body Disinterred and the Heart Taken Out to Cure a Man of Consumption!—A libel and disgrace upon the intelligence of this community was perpetrated last week at the small settlement of Goodspeedville, some mile or two from this village. It appears that a man by the name of Adams, living in Goodspeedville, died about seventeen months ago, leaving a wife to mourn his loss. The widow removed to the West, and remained there until a short time since, when she returned to this town.

Upon her return, she found her deceased husband's brother dying with consumption, and declared he could be cured only in the following manner, which she said was practiced where she had been living—"The body of her husband should be taken up, the heart dissected, and if any blood was found in the heart, it should be burned, and the sick man would recover! This monstrous proposition was immediately acted upon—the dead body disinterred—a physician (?) called, who took out the heart and lungs, but not enough blood being found to answer the purpose—the body having lain too long—the further prosecution of the infamous project was abandoned.

A NAIL IN THE HEART OF A HORSE.—A correspondent of The Field mentions that the Right Hon. Sir J. Thropple recently sent an old hunter, which was incurably lame, and incapable of further service, over to his kennels to be killed for his hounds. When he was cut up the hunter's man took the heart for some young hounds ill of strumpet, and in cutting it up his knife struck against some hard substance, which he found to be a blacksmith's shoe, nail, fully 2 1/2 inches long and imbedded in the heart, with the head of the nail near the point, the sharp end upward.—The nail had never been clinched but was nearly straight, the point slightly turned, and it looked as if it had been rejected by a smith in trying it in a shoe. The horse has been for eight years in Sir John Thropple's possession.

The Rabbit Trade in Belgium.—It is almost incredible to what a degree of importance this branch of trade has attained in Flanders within the last six or seven years. There are fifty thousand skinned carcasses of these animals exported weekly to England—more than two and a half millions annually—where they find a ready market as articles of food while it is difficult to sell them in Flanders at twenty-five cents apiece. The preparation and coloring of the skins gives employment, in Ghent alone, to more than two thousand workmen.

A Father Can Will the Custody of His Children.—A few days ago, in the District Court of Allegheny county, Pa., Mrs. Margaretta Hamilton sought to recover the guardianship of three of her children, aged respectively 13, 11 and 6 years, who by their father's will, had been taken from her protection and confided to relatives of the father. The court, however, decided that the father had a right to 'devise the custody of any minor child during his or her minority,' to any person whatsoever, and as it was not shown that the children were in any way restrained of their liberty, the mother's application was not allowed.

Send Note of an Eminent Physician.—On Thursday last an old man, without friends or money, died at the house of a colored woman at Evansville, Indiana. His name was subsequently ascertained to be Dr. John Poncec Holmes, a member of the College of Surgeons, London, and formerly in the employ of the Hudson Bay Company, the friend of Captain Parry, the Arctic navigator, and the associate of many of the first people of England. He was also the author of several valuable inventions.

Poor Quarters.—A correspondent of the New York Herald asserts, that in a slum at forty-ninth street, between fifth and sixth avenues, from twenty to two hundred kegs of powder are constantly kept, and that in the same slum, only divided by a board partition, a blacksmith plies his work lustily! What a brave fellow he must be! This is actually so.

Shipment of Coon Skins.—A shipment of eighteen thousand coon skins was made in a single lot from Chicago on the 15th inst., for London, by way of New York. The average value of the skins is about fifty cents each. They were made up into bales of three hundred skins each.

Apply soap suds to your grape vines and rose-bushes; they will be benefited by it.

MONEY WANTED

PROFITABLE & SAFE INVESTMENT!

PERSONS desiring to invest money safely and profitably, and at the same time free from all local taxes, can make an excellent investment by calling upon the undersigned, President of the Gettysburg Railroad Company, or any of its Managers. The Gettysburg Railroad Company have Bonds, secured by a Mortgage on their property, bearing interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually, on the first days of February and August in each year until due. They have sold some of the Bonds and met the interest falling due on them the 1st inst., promptly, by setting apart a fund for that purpose. The Bonds are now selling at 90 per cent. of their par value, and the holder will realize seven and one half per cent. interest per annum, payable every six months without fail; and also, without doubt, make twenty-five per cent. on his investment in a year or two by the Bonds going up to par.

The Road is now in operation as far as New Oxford and bringing in a profitable revenue. From the business on that portion alone, it is confidently expected that more than sufficient will be realized to pay the interest on all the Bonds issued, after defraying all expenses. Subscriptions can be made for Bonds payable in installments.
